

Ki Hinei Kachomer

315a

Version 3

Trad.
Arr. Stuart Izon

The poem, Ki Hinei Kachomer which we read on Kol Nidrei evening, depicts God as a series of different artisans, shaping us with the related medium: "like clay in the hands of the potter", "like stone in the hand of the mason", etc. The poem emphasises the powerlessness of man, and asks God to remember the covenant He made with us and to overlook our sins. The piyut is undoubtedly inspired by verses in Isaiah 64 and Jeremiah 18.

This is an ancient, traditional melody, and the most prevalent tune in the UK, though there exist several slight variants. It is customary to restate this tune for the two paragraphs in Ne'ila יְשַׁמְּעֵנוּ סִלְחָתִי and יְחַבֵּאנוּ צֶל יְדוֹ giving a sense of bookending the day.

Andante moderato

Chazzan

Ki hi-nei ka - cho - mer b' - yad ha - yo - tzer
 Ki hi-nei ka - e - ven b' - yad ham - sa - tet
 Ki hi-nei ka - gar - zen b' - yad he - cha - rash
 Ki hi-nei ka - he - geh b' - yad ha - ma - lach
 Ki hi-nei kiz - chu - chit b' - yad ha - m' - za - geg
 Ki hi-nei ka - y' - ri - a b' - yad ha - ro - kem
 Ki hi-nei ka - ke - sef b' - yad ha - tzo - ref

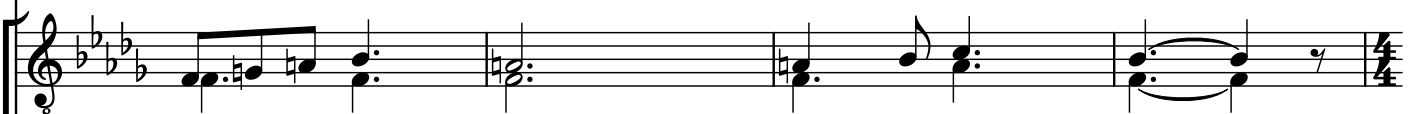

5

C.

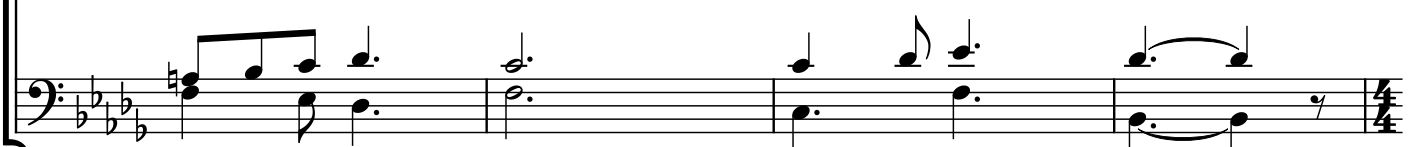

bir - tzo - to mar - chiv u - vir - tzo - to m' - ka - tzer bir - tzo - to o - chez u - vir - tzo - to m' - cha - tet bir - tzo - to di - bek la - or u - vir - tzo - to pe - rash bir - tzo - to o - chez u - vir - tzo - to shi - lach bir - tzo - to cho - geg u - vir - tzo - to m' - mo - geg bir - tzo - to m' - ya - sher u - vir - tzo - to m' - a - kem bir - tzo - to m' - sag - seg u - vir - tzo - tzo m' - tza - ref

M A

Ah

T
B

9 $\text{♩} = \text{♩}$

C.

che - sed no - tzer_
 m'cha - ye u - m' - mo - tet_ to - mech a - ni va - rash el tov v' - sa - lach ma - a - vir za - don v' - sho - geg_ el ka - no v' - no - kem
 mam - ti l' - ma - zor te - ref

M A

ken a - nach - nu b' - ya - d' - cha

T
B

11 $\text{♩} = \text{♩}$

M A

la - brit ha - bet v' - al te - fen la - ye - tzer

T
B 