

Sh'ma Yisrael

54a

Version 2

It's difficult to say what the historical practice is regarding the melodies we use for taking the Torah out on Shabbat morning. Whilst it is true that Sulzer wrote the declamatory lines for chazzan which are fairly ubiquitous today, the congregational responses seem to come from an earlier tradition, of unknown authorship. These melodies appear in several classic chazzanut scores (with some minor variations) and they are used for both the chazzan and the congregational responses.

The melody for Echad is well known but this line for Sh'ma (which also appears in Sulzer's score) is rarely heard. I've only encountered it in shuls with a very strong sense of tradition. Some backport the Echad melody onto the first line, and others reuse Sulzer's theme – see the following page for more detail.
