

Havu Ladonai

70a

Version 2

Julius Mombach
Arr. Stuart Izon

This is one of Julius Mombach's best known melodies, and this composition completely epitomises Mombach's style: very singable, straightforward harmony and a most satisfying ending. Surprisingly, it was not in the original edition of the Blue Book, only being added later in the 1933 supplement (edited by Alman).

Havu Ladonai is written in ternary form, with the middle section modulating to the subdominant, a structure which appears in a number of Mombach's compositions. As it is typically sung in unison on the melody line nowadays, I would speculate that most people don't even realise there is a key change in the middle, which only returns to the original tonality at "Adonai lamabul yashav". This is manifested by many congregants not flattening the 7th (the 4th in the new key) at "vayarkidem", resulting in a "soft launch" into the new key, as it were.
