

Mizmor Shir

11b

Version 1

Julius Mombach
Arr. Stuart Izon

The recitation of Mizmor Shir at Shabbat Mincha following the Torah reading is a Sephardic custom promoted by Rav David Abudarham, which later spread to many Yekkish communities. Among UK Ashkenazi congregations, this minhag is still prevalent today.

This melody is the traditional UK melody for Psalm 92 at Shabbat Mincha. Nowadays it has evolved into more of a non-metrical chant. However, the original composition is for choir, and seems to have been intended for the evening service, appearing in the Kabbalat Shabbat section of Mombach's score, but was later repurposed as a Mincha setting in the Blue Book. No doubt the low probability of a choir at Shabbat Mincha hastened its evolution to the non-metrical chant.

As opposed to the more repetitive chant version we now have, Mombach's setting is essentially in ternary form, with a slower reverential line at "You are externally exalted Lord", and the highest note in the composition deftly appearing on the word "marom". This is followed by a B-section, with the familiar original melody recapitulating at "Tzadik Katamar".
